JVW_Q50

The following questions ask about job vacancies. A job is vacant if it meets all of the following conditions:

- on [reference month] 1, you were actively seeking a worker outside the organization to fill the job.
- there are tasks to be carried out but no one to do them at some point during [reference month]; the earliest start date for the job in question is before the end of the month.
- whoever is hired to fill the job will become a paid employee at this location.

On [reference month] 1st, were there any job vacancies [at the location/for] [operating address] in [city], for which you were actively recruiting externally?

ON-SCREEN HELP: Include:

- both replacement and new hires
- full-time, part-time, permanent, temporary, casual and seasonal job vacancies
- vacancies for off-site jobs that report to this location.

Exclude:

- jobs reserved for subcontractors, external consultants or other workers who are not considered to be employees
- job vacancies at any location other than this location.

Note: Press the help button (?) for additional information.

- 1 Yes
- 2 No, there are no job vacancies during the month of [reference month] (Don't know, Refusal not allowed)

JVW_Q130A

To obtain a more detailed picture of the labour needs of Canadian employers, the following section classifies vacancies by job titles and collects other characteristics, including offered wage or salary, minimum level of education and work experience required.

A job is vacant if it meets all of the following conditions:

- on [reference month] 1, you were actively seeking a worker outside the organization to fill the job.
- there are tasks to be carried out but no one to do them at some point during [reference month]; the earliest start date for the job in question is before the end of the month.
- whoever is hired to fill the job will become a paid employee at this location.
