QUESTION 1:

Fiscal Year 2008/2009

How many government operated adult custodial facilities were in operation during the year?

- a) Number in operation at the beginning of the year
(i.e. April 1, 2008).....
- b) New facilities opened during 2008/2009..... +
- c) Facilities permanently closed during 2008/2009..... -
- d) Number in operation at year-end
(i.e. March 31st, 2009)..... =

Name	Date	Opened	Closed

CORE DEFINITION(S) :

1. Fiscal Year - April 1, 2008 to March 31, 2009.
2. Government Facility - Refers to all custodial facilities run by the government agency responsible for corrections in your jurisdiction. These facilities are distinguishable from private correctional facilities in that they are operated by government employees rather than employees from the private sectors. All facilities that are considered administratively distinct should be counted separately. For example, if a facility has affiliates or satellites which are administered centrally only the base facility should be counted.

Many terms are used by the jurisdictions when referring to custodial facilities. Examples are: jails, correctional institutions, community residential centres, community correctional centres, detention centres, reformatories, training centres, remand centres, and camps. The meaning of these terms can vary among jurisdiction.

TOTAL FACILITIES IN OPERATION AT YEAR-END (i.e., March 31, 2008)	=
	<input style="width: 100px;" type="text" value="0"/>

CORE DEFINITION (S) :

1. Government Facility - See Question 1.
2. Security Level - Provincial and territorial correctional facilities are classified as either secure, open or having a multilevel setting (secure and open). A facility is considered secure when inmates are detained by security devices, including those which operate with full perimeter security features and/or whose inmates are under constant supervision or observation. A facility classified as open denotes the minimal use of security devices or perimeter security and/or where supervision of inmates is only partial. Work camps and community-based correctional facilities are often considered to have an open security level. If the security level of an affiliated facility differs from that of the base facility, the security level of the base facility should be reported.

Are special capacity bed-spaces included in the total operating capacity total?

Indicate (X) where applicable.

Yes

No

CORE DEFINITION (S) :

1. Government Facility - See Question 1.
2. Capacity - Note that standards used to assign capacity figures vary across jurisdictions, and that the use of bed spaces for special or normal purposes is flexible, depending on operational need. Also note that capacity figures may vary over the course of the year through the restructuring of available bed-space, therefore, capacity at year-end should be reported.

Under Operational, the number of inmates the facility is designed to hold under normal circumstances is reported. Under Special, the designated capacity for special purpose usage such as sickness, discipline, protective custody, or segregation is reported. If a distinction between Operational and Special is not available, total capacity only should be reported.

All arrivals which result in the completion of an admission document should be included, however, inmates released for purposes other than transfer (e.g. to attend court, temporary absence, etc.) should not be included. Similarly, inmates transferred to camps which are considered as part of a base facility should not be counted.

 - b) Warrant of Remand - Persons not sentenced during their stay should be counted as remand or lock-up admissions. Remand admissions include persons who entered custody under a Warrant of Remand, and persons who were issued a Warrant of Remand while under temporary detention.

Inmates temporarily released from custody - Refers to those inmates who have been temporarily released from custody for various reasons, on day parole, or a temporary absence.

Probation - Refers to a type of court disposition imposed on an individual which is served in the community and under conditions of supervision. A probation order may be given in conjunction with a suspended sentence, a conditional discharge, a fine or in conjunction with a jail sentence.

Conditional sentence - Refers to a new type of community-based alternative to imprisonment as stated in the Sentencing reform, Bill (C-41). If certain legal criteria are fulfilled, a judge may sentence to a conditional term of imprisonment an offender who would otherwise have been sent to prison. According to the terms of the conditional sentence, the offender will serve the term of imprisonment in the community provided that he/she abides by conditions imposed by the court as part of the conditional sentence order. If the offender violates these conditions, he/she may be sent to prison to serve the balance of that sentence.

Full Parole - A form of conditional release from custody whereby an inmate who is considered eligible may be released, at a time considered appropriate by a parole board, to serve the balance of a sentence under supervision in the community subject to stated conditions.

Statutory Release - Statutory release allows most federally sentenced offenders who have not been granted parole to serve the final third of their sentences in the community under supervision and under conditions of release like those imposed on offenders released on full parole.
